TELL NEEDS OF THE SOIL

SPECIALISTS DISCUSS LEGUMES AT CLOVER MEETING.

BANKERS GIVE DINNER

Many Delegates Attend Third Annual Meeting Despite Bad Roads.—Use of Lime Urged.

"The soil and crop improvement program arises from the fact that it is now necessary to produce concrete roads, public schools, motor cars, and modern homes from a soil which in its virgin state produced roads through a clearing, spring wagons, and log cabins." This statement, taken from the program outlined by the Lawrence County Clover and Prosperity program of 1926, which was judged the best in the United States for that year, was quoted by Ide P. Trotter, soils and crop specialist from the Missouri College of Agriculture of the University in the opening address of the Third Annual Nodaway County Clover and Prosperity Conference.

The conference was called to order at 10:30 o'clock this morning by J. Ross Fleetwood, extension agent, in the circuit court room. Despite somewhat unfavorable road conditions, there was a good-sized attendance at the opening of the meeting and this increased throughout the day. Many of the township delegates were present, in addition to a large number of others.

Fertility Decreases.

"The soil is not an inexhaustable store house of food, and we are coming to the realization that our soil is actually decreasing in fertility," Mr. Trotter said in stating what the problem which faces the farmers. "While this is true, we are continually obliged to secure from the soil a greater income. If soil fertility is not maintained so that it is passed on in good condition our obligation to the next generation is not fulfilled," he stated.

"Nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash are necessary elements contributing to the fertility of the soil. Nitrogen is the most generally deficient element, and this may be supplied to the soil through legume crops," Mr. Trotter continued. "Legumes have the faculty of fixing nitrogen from the air into soil and storing it there. Legumie crops therefore make available a cheap practical supply of nitrogen. Phosphorous cannot be supplied through any plant, so this element necessary to the fertility of the soil must be supplied through some commercial fertilizer. Missouri is especially low in the supply of phosporous, so this is usually greatly needed here. Potash is another fundamental plant food which is needed in most places, but Missouri is fortunate in having her soils abundantly supplied with this element."

Lime Is Needed.

Mr. Trotter then listed a number of elements which contribute to the failure of legume crops if they are not observed. Lime is necessary in the soil as a corrective to remove acidity or sourness in the soil. In the placement of lime in the soil it is not only necessary to know if it is needed, but the correct amount of finely ground high quality lime put on at the right time is necessary if it is to produce the right effect, the speaker warned. Other elements necessary for growing lgume crops are phosporous of some organic matter, preferably barnyard manure. Other things to be noted in growing legumes, Mr. Trotter concluded, are to select the right kind of seeds, to use the proper cultural methods in the crop, and to note with care the seeding date.

"Phases of Legume Production Applicable to Nodaway County" as the topic of the address made by P. F. Schowengerdt, the second speaker of the conference. Mr. Schowengerdt is also with the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri, and he stressed the economic aspect of growing legumes. "We know legume crops are valuable," Mr. Schowengerdt said, "and the purpose of this conference is to get the farmer thinking about the problem.

For Higher Acreage.

In his talk, Mr. Schowengerdt brought out the fact that a higher acreage yield is most profitable because it brings greater return for the amount of labor involved, thus reducing the labor problem, and further, the problem of surplus production is caused by over-production of crops on low-producing areas. FAVORS THE M'NARY BILL

FARM RELIEF MEASURE GETS COMMITTEE O. K.

TO AID COUNTY AGENTS

Coolidge Asks Congress for Appropriation for Agricultural Department to Aid Flood Districts.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The McNary farm relief bill was favorably reported today by the Senate agriculture committee.

The measure is substantially the same as the McNary-Haugen bill vetoed by President Coolidge after it passed the last Congress.

Although modified in certain details, the bill reported by the committee contains the equalization fee provision to which the President objected last year.

The measure provides for creation of a federal farm loan board consisting of the Secretary of Agriculture and 12 members. This board would have power to appoint advisory councils representing producers of farm crops requiring stabilization and to make loans totalling $250,000,000 to cooperative associations.

The board could enter marketing agreements and dispose of surpluses when cooperatives were unable to do so.

Any losses incurred in marketing surpluses must be paid from equalization fees collected from producers.

The committee voted unanimously to report the measure, but some members said they would oppose it in the floor.

Washington, Feb. 15. — President Coolidge today asked Congress for a supplemental appropriation of $502,816 for the agriculture department, of which $450,000 would be used for county extension agents in flood devastated areas.

Drafting of Coolidge Urged by New Yorkers

Two Prominent Republicans Go on Record to Have President Run for Re-Election.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Two prominent New York State Republicans today were on record as favoring the drafting of President Coolidge as the Republican presidential nominee after the Lincoln day banquet of the Albany county Republican organization.

The two Republicans were Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman from New York, and Representative Wallace S. Dempsey.

Appeal for Skin to Save a Boy's Life

Jefferson City Boy in Critical Condition —3,000 More Pieces Are Needed.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 15.—An appeal was issued here today for volunteers to give pieces of their skin to help save the life of Leslie Landrum, 16 year old youth in a critical condition in a hospital here.

Landrum was badly burned when a can of burning oil was accidentally thrown over him. Already 475 pieces of skin have been grafted on the raw flesh of the boy but it was estimated 3,000 more small bits would be required to effect a complete healing.

START SECOND HICKMAN CASE

TENTATIVE JURORS SELECTED FOR MURDER CASE.

ATTACK STATE LAWS

Edward Hickman's Attorneys Prepare to Seek State Supreme Court Appeal on Insanity Phases.

Courtroom, Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15.—Six men and six women comprised the tentative jury examined today at the trial of William Edward Hickman and Welby Hunt for the murder of Ivy Toms, druggist.

The first panel was called into the courtroom where Hickman heard the penalty of death pronounced for the murder of Marion Parker. Attorney A. Gray Gilmer, repesenting Hunt, began the questioning.

The case was assigned to superior court judge Elliott Craig after superior judge Carlos S. Hardy had overruled a motion for a continuance made by attorneys for Hickman.

Defense attorney Jerome Walsh filed an affidavit, signed by Hickman in which the attorney declared that he could not handle the case properly because of the short time he had to prepare for it.

Hunt and Hickman stood together as Judge Hardy read the affidavit and denied the motion.

An attack upon the constitutionality of California's new and untested criminal statute which allows a defendant to plead not guilty by reason of insanity, appeared probable today as attorneys for William Edward Hickman prepared to seek a state supreme court appeal from a sentence of death imposed upon the convicted slayer of little Marion Parker.

The appeal was to be based upon the contention that Hickman was denied his constitutional right of trial in the Parker case. Defense counsel contended Hickman was not tried on the question of his guilt or innocence, but on the sole issue of his mental condition.

The moves, proposed by defense counsel, may delay execution, set for April 27, for at least a year, it is pointed out. Defeat in the state supreme court will be followed by an appeal to the United States supreme court, Walsh and Cantillon have declared.

RAPS POWER OF SENATE TO INVESTIGATE

Washington, Feb. 15.—Bitter personal debate aroused the Senate to a fever pitch today as both sides in the power combine fight closed their arguments preparatory to a final vote upon the Walsh resolution for a senatorial inquiry into Public Utilities activities.

After Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, had personally assailed Senator Walsh of Montana and condemned the growing tendency of the Senate to investigate everything under the sun, Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, delivered a scathing attack upon Wall Street interests and the Power Trust.

"Drunk With Powers."

The Senate is drunk with its investigating powers, Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, told that body today in opposing the Walsh resolution for investigation of the so-called power combine.

Hints Corruption.

Both Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, and Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, members of the Independent bloc, made veiled charges of corruption in their speeches for a Senatorial investigation.

"An investigation may show that Samuel Insull of Illinois, is not the only man who buys seats in the United States Senate," Norris said. "If these public utilities men are honest, why do they oppose investigation?"

Two Missouri Banks Merge.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 15.—Consolidation of the California State Bank and the Farmers and Traders Bank, both of California, Mo., was announced today by the state finance department. It was the ninth bank consolidation this year.

Wilbur's Speech Is Attacked in House

Naval Program Is Opposed as "Menace" by Religious Delegates Before Naval Committee.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Secretary of Navy Wilbur's assertion in his Indianapolis speech Monday night that he did not want the navy "to fight blindfold" was attacked in the House today as "tomfoolery."

The criticism was from Representative McClintic, Democratic, Oklahoma, who said Congress last session voted $170,000,000 for aircraft.

"Such statements should not be made, for they do not convey the correct situation in this nation," he said.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The administration's proposed naval program was opposed as a "menace" to world peace today by representatives of peace, religious and church organizations appearing before the House naval affairs committee.

LINDY ADVISES CITY AIRPORTS

AVIATION TO BECOME THE GREATEST INDUSTRY.

INTEREST IS GREATER

U. S. Leads Europe in Aviation Except in Commercial Flying—Speaks at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today advised favorably located municipalities to "get in line with the progress of aviation."

"It is entirely probable," he told 800 St. Louisans at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon, "that it will take its place among the greatest industries of the world."

Taking St. Louis is an example, but explaining that "airplanes are not confined by locality," the "Lone Eagle" said:

"It is entirely within the reach of St. Louis to create an air center here similar to to the automotive center in Detroit."

The same opportunity, relatively speaking, confronts, "any one of at least a half dozen other cities," he said.

"It is a case of getting the ball rolling," he continued, "by stimulating public interest to back up a favorable location."

"The science of aviation progressed rapidly in the last 25 years," he said, "and in all probability will progress even more so in the next few years.

"The only obstacles we have to overcome are fog and sleet, and I think it probable that they will be conquered by the application of radio and by beacon lights and other aids."

Interest in aviation in this country, he said he had found is greater today than when he left Washington for Mexico City in December. The United States lags Europe in commercial passenger flying, "but in other respects leads."

Can Identify Liberty Bonds Nye Declares

Bonds Sold By Senator DuPont to Pay Off Republican Debt Were Purchased by Continental Oil.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Two witnesses in New York notified the Senate Teapot Dome committee that they can identify the $75,000 of Liberty bonds sold by Senator T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware to pay off a 1920 debt of the Republican national committee, Chairman Nye announced today.

Nye said in serial numbers of the bonds indicated they were among the Liberty bonds purchased by the Continental Trading Company from profits derived in the strange oil deal of 1921.

Joseph F. McMahon of Potter & Company and James Bernieri of C. F. Childs & Company were the witnesses with whom the committee communicated. They will appear to testify at reopening of the hearing tomorrow.

McMahon will testify concerning the sale November 30, 1923, of $75,000 of 3 Liberty bonds for $74,718, which was deposited to Du Pont's account, according to Nye.

British-U. S. Treaty to Condemn War.

London, Feb. 15.—The draft of the forthcoming British-American arbitration treaty preamble contains a clause condemning war, Godfrey Locker-Lampson, under-secretary of foreign affairs told a questioner in the House of Commons today.

SEEK SUPPORT IN FARM BLOC

ATTEMPT TO SOLIDIFY OPPOSITION TO HOOVER.

WOULD BACK NORRIS

Reports Eminate From Washington That Secretary Jardine Will Support Hoover.—Before Committee Feb. 24.

By Paul R. Mallon,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The dominant Republican party group in the United States Senate is negotiating privately with the midwestern independent farm group to solidify opposition to the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover for the presidential nomination.

An appointed Republican leader went to a leader of the Independent group after Hoover's candidacy was announced Sunday night, the United Press learned today.

He received the following assurance from the farm lieutenant:

1—The Farm Group members strongly oppose Hoover and even would prefer President Coolidge for renomination, because of their feeling that Hoover is chiefly responsible for the President's attitude against the McNary-Haugen bill.

2—If Hoover should be nominated against a Democratic candidate who favored farm relief, the farm group would begin agitation for a diversion from the Republican candidate.

A Move For Norris.

3—The farm group is planning a more active movement for Senator Norris of Nebraska in the next few weeks with an idea of building up strength for him in the convention. It is now expected he will have at least Wisconsin and Nebraska.

In answer to these statements, the Republican leader declared that his group would work for an advocate of the McNary-Haugen price stabilization farm bill and that he believed the two factfons of the party which always have been divergent, might unite on a candidate.

Might Silence Opposition.

Politicians admit that if Hoover can get the open support of Mr. Coolidge he can jockey this congressional opposition into reluctant silence at least. They could not openly oppose Hoover against the President's wishes, some say.

Jardine For Hoover.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Secretary of Agriculture Jardine will support Herbert Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, it was learned authoritatively today.

Jardine was represented as believing Hoover would make a fine president and would be greatly interested in problems of the farmers.

Jardine, it was explained, is in a delicate position because Senator Curtis is the favorite son of Kansas, Jardine's home state.

The Secretary of Agriculture has already advised Curtis that he is for Hoover and believes Kansas sentiment will be for Hoover after expressing its "favorite son" choice for Curtis.

Jardine, it was indicated, may take an active part in Hoover's campaign should the race become intense.

Before Committee Feb. 24.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 15.—Seeking refuge from political discussions, secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, arrived here today for a week of fishing.

Hoover, who has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president, denied that he will wage an active campaign.

Surgeon Killed in Plane Crash.

Former Skidmore Man Quells Race Trouble

Skidmore.—The following item from the Woman's Home Missionary Society Journal of the M. E. Church is of considerable interest to Skidmore readers. The Rev. Buel Horn, referred to, is a son of Mrs. Sarah Horn and was raised in Skidmore. He graduated from both the academy and college departments of Missouri Wesleyan, and also was graduated from the Garrett Biblical Institute at Evanston, Ill. Following this he entered the ministry of the M. E. Church near Chicago. For several years he has been superintendent of Campbell Settlement, a social organization for foreign workers employed in the Gary steel mills at Gary, Ind.

The paper states, "When a short time ago I read of a strike among the students of Emerson school of Gary, Ind., because there were nineteen colored boys and girls in the school, I recalled we were there with the Campbell settlement in the heart of the colored settlement of Gary. And since our Mr. Horn has the respect of the leaders of both races, white and colored, we felt sure he could aid in settling the problem. The situation easily might have grown into a race riot. One other school had 2,000 white and 800 colored, and another had 1,800 colored and 800 white pupils. Mr. Horn was on the job night and day and as result of his services not one single serious event happened during this trying period."

Although this incident occurred some time ago, we are glad to recall that Mr. Horn played a substantial part in this happy adjustment.

W. H. Gillespie suffered a serious injury to his hand last week. Some one handing a 2x6 inch piece of timber lost control of its and the wind siezed its opportunity to slam it against the back of his hand and gashed it to the bone.

There is a movemen to put on a special musical event by the local talent of Skidmore, dated for Easter Sunday night. While arrangements are not completed the proposition will probably carry.

F. C. McClurg was in St. Joseph Friday between trains.

An interesting meeting of two comrades occurred on the street the other day. Both men felt they ought to know each other. It finally developed they had been in the same company of the A. E. F. in France.

We see by the press that some criticism is being pointed against Secretary of State C. U. Becker, for suggesting in the auto tag packages that he might be a good candidate to succeed himself. I do not known anything about Becker or his office and the rest, but if he sent anything to the other autoists and did not send anything to me, I am going to kick. I want all that goes with my money.

Andy Cottrell is working Saturdays in the Foster store. He slipped in so quetly that we did not hear him.

Milton Sewell is still in St. Francis Hospital at Maryville. It is reported that it is likely that some skin grafting may be necessary to complete the operation.

Mrs. J. C. Spahr spent the week-end with her cousin, Mrs. J. R. Callison, in Maitland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Saunders have been ill for several days from a light attack of the flu.

Mrs. James Parrish was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Owens to help care for their infant child Sunday. The child was seriously ill with acute indigestion but late reports are that it is some better.

Ladies Auxiliary of Association Will Hold Meeting at Same Time in Federal Building.

The regular semi-annual meeting of the Rural Letter Carriers Association of the Fourth Congressional District of the state will be held in the federal building at St. Joseph February 22, according to O. G. Null of Pickering, secretary-treasurer of the Association. The carriers' wives and daughters are invited to attend the meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Association, which will be held at the same hour as the carriers meet, 11 a. m.

Their meeting will be in a separate room, Mr. Null says. Mrs. B. A. Bonewitz of Savannah is district president of the auxiliary, which last year had fifty-two members. It hopes to increase the membership by this number during this year.

Mr. Null says that renewal of memberships will be an order of business during forenoon session. A discussion of the group insurance sponsored by the National Association and selection of delegates to the State convention to be held at Lebanon, Mo., on July 13-14 will be items on the afternoon program.

"Every carrier in the district is hereby invited to attend this meeting and to become a member of the Association if not already a member. Membership in the Association entitles you to 'participate in the cooperative purchasing plan' of the Association whereby you will save from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent of list price on auto accessories, tires and oils. It also makes the carriers eligible to purchase group life insurance of the company with whom the National Association has contract and secures a copy of National Rural Letter Carrier once each month free of charge.

"Dues for 1928 are now due and payable. The proposed legislation now before Congress is worthy of support and in no way can it be more effectively supported than by renewing membership in the Association."

that high yields are most profitable, it was pointed out by the speaker that high yields are more profitable on legume sod, fertilized by phosphates.

Using the corn production of Nodaway County as a basis for his calculation, Mr. Schowengerdt said that he was dealing with no small problem in the corn problem, but that it was one that amounts to about $2,895,000 annually, the value of the corn produced in this county yearly. He proved that higher profits from raising corn follow a higher yield by citing the case of studies made by the Illinois Corn Growers' Association in Central Illinois, in a district very similar to that in this vicinity. He pointed out figures in his address to prove that a $500 profit was possible from 28 acres of land producing fifty bushels per acre, while on a piece of land producing but thirty bushels per acre it was necessary to harvest 166 acres to show a profit of $500.

Following the second address, which was continued in the afternoon session of the conference, a discussion period was held, at which the delegates brought up questions on matters relating to the production of legume crops. Plans for demonstrations and tests were made at the close of the conference.

The Nodaway County Bankers Association entertained the delegates of the conference at noon with a banquet given at the First M. E. Church.

ARGENTINE DELEGATE REFUSES TO ATTEND CONFERENCE.

OVER TARIFF CLAUSE

Pan-American Delegates Believe Situation Is Serious.—Withdrawal Would Mar Parley.

Buenos Aires, Feb. 15.—La Prenza today published a dispatch from its special correspondent, Ramon de Franch, at Havana, saying he had learned definitely that Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon had resigned as chief Argentine delegate to the Pan-American conference.

Havana, Feb. 15.—Pan-American union delegates today feared that Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, chief Argentine delegate, had withdrawn from the conference after his refusal to sign a union constitution unless it contained an anti-tariff clause.

It was admitted that such withdrawal would mar the entire conference, already facing the necessity of confessing inability to do the work it set out to do.

An hour after the time set for meeting of the Pan-American union committee, Dr. Pueyrredon and his fellow Argentine delegate, Laurentino Olascoaga, were absent.

Delegates immediately suggested among themselves the possibility that Pueyrredon had decided not to participate.

Up to the time of meeting, no solution that was regarded as having a chance of success had been suggested.

The situation was deadlocked, with Pueyrredon holding out alone on what he said was a matter of basic principle.

For days, Charles E. Hughes, chief United States delegate, and others vainly had tried to move Pueyrredon.

Argentine delegates told the United Press they did not knew why Pueyrredon was absent from the committee meeting or what communications had passed between him and the Argentine government.

The delegates said they believed Pueyrredon's absence was from personal motives and did not constitute a withdrawal of the Argentine delegation from the conference.

Pueyrredon, when the United Press finally reached him, said he would attend no further meetings of the union until completion of an exchange of views between him and his government over the position he had taken.

He refused to say whether, as many believed, he had resigned already.

The seriousness with which committeemen viewed the situation was shown by a speech of Salvador Urbina, Mexico, expressing hope that Argentina would not withdraw from the Pan-American union.

DEATH TAKES WAR PREMIER

EARL OF ASQUITH DIES AT 6:50 THIS MORNING.

STRICKEN ON SUNDAY

Herbert H. Asquith Had Brilliant Career and Was One of the Great Political Figures.

Sutton-Courtney, Eng., Feb. 15.—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith, one of England's great political figures and prime minister during the early stages of the World War, died today at 6:50 a. m.

He had been ill since Sunday when he was stricken with an attack of pharyngitis.

He had been in a coma most of the time, unable to recognize immediate members of his family who had gathered.

The members of the family besides the widow were Sir Maurice and Lady Violet Bonham-Carter; Princess Bibesco and the four sons, Herbert Asquith, Brig. Gen. Arthur Asquith, Cyril and Anthony and Cyril's wife.

75 Years Old,

Death came peacefully to the 75 year old former prime minister, who for two score years had been one of the outstanding politicians of England.

At 6:30 a. m., doctors notified his family that he could not live until dawn. His wife, Margot Asquith, whose memoirs caused a sensation some years back, was already at the bedside, having been almost in constant attention for the past fifty hours.

At 6:50 doctors announced word Oxford was dead.

The venerable Lord Oxford, born Sept. 12, 1852, was the last in Great Britain of the Victorian school of silver-tongued orators, still extant in the United States. Other speakers were forced to change their styles of address to suit the more business-like times. Lord Oxford's sonorous sentences, polished and rounded-out with frequent classical allusions, were famous.

A Brilliant Career.

It was a brilliant career that Lord Oxford — Herbert H. Asquith — had rounded out and a career closely woven in the history of Great Britain of the last 40 years.

He was an excellent student at Oxford University and went directly from college into politics. His first election to the House of Commons was in 1886.

Six years later he had progressed so rapidly in British affairs that he was made home secretary, his first cabinet job.

In 1894 he married Miss Emma Margaret Tennant—as his second wife.

He became prime minister in 1908 and held the post until late in 1916 when his cabinet became dissatisfied with the prosecution of the war. He resigned.

Breaks With Lloyd George.

It was at that time that he and his political lieutenant, David Lloyd George, his successor in office, became enemies and this breach had never been completely healed.

Lord Oxford took his peerage on January 26, 1925 and apparently ceased to be active as a party politician. Prior to that he and Lloyd George had held a sort of joint leadership with Lord Oxford the nominal head and Lloyd George the actual head of the party.

In recent years, Lord Oxford, who had aged rapidly, had remained fairly well out of political life.

There were three sons and one daughter by his first marriage and one son and one daughter by his second. His eldest son was killed in action in 1916 and Lord Oxford was deeply grieved at this death.

The heir to the earldom is Viscount Asquith, 12, the son of Raymond Asquith who was killed during the war.

Lord Oxford was the second of the great British war figures to die within the past few weeks. Recently Earl Haig, British field marshal during the World War, died.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 15.—D. C. Stephenson, once Ku Klux Klan grand dragon of Indiana and a power in the state's political affairs, told his version today of an alleged conspiracy of Governor Ed Jackson and others to bribe former Governor Warren T. McCray.

Stephenson refused to testify yesterday after he had been brought here from Michigan City penitentiary, where he is serving a life sentence for murder.

He said his relations with Jackson, who was secretary of state at the time of the alleged bribe conspiracy, were close. Stephenson charged attempts to kill him were made at the state penitentiary. He also said prison officials attempted to intimidate him to keep him from talking about politics.

Think Escaped Convict Held at Gas Station

Ohio Authorities Believe Jennings, Arrested for Defrauding, Is Wanted In Indiana.

St. Clairsville, Ohio, Feb. 15.—Sheriff C. C. Hardesty, of Belmont County, expressed certainty today that Albert Jennings, arrested here for attempting to defraud a gas station proprietor; is John Burns, who disappeared with another prisoner and two Indiana deputy sheriffs while en-route from Lafayette, Ind., to the reformatory at Pendleton. Hardesty based his declaration on comparison with photographs of Burns. The companion captured here with Burns is believed to be Samuel Baxter, the other escaped prisoner.

Muncy, Pa., Feb. 15.—Two men were held in jail here today in the belief that they are John Burns and Samuel Baxter who disappeared while en-route to the Indiana reformatory at Pendleton, Ind., with two guards.

Hirth Advises G. O. P. Hoover Won't Do

Former Democrat Writes Dr. Clements in Behalf of Lowden Or Dawes.

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 15.—With the comment that it is rather early for those who are looking for the real Republican bandwagon to make up their minds, William Hirth, editor of the Missouri Farmer, has written a letter to Dr. E. B. Clements, Republican National Committeeman for Missouri, declaring that there will be no stampede to Herbert Hoover in Missouri.

"If by any chance Hoover should become the nominee, there is not the slightest question that tens of thousands of Republican farmers in Missouri will vote for the Democratic candidate for President, and his almost regardless of who he may be," he wrote. "And it is equally true that if Gov. Lowden of Gen. Dawes should be the nominee, that tens of thousands of our Democratic farmers will support either one of them, and again almost regardless of who the Democratic nominee may be—and I say this because the friendship of Lowden and Dawes for agriculture is so outstanding that Democratic farmers are certain to smash the old party lines into kindling wood, if they get the chance. It would seem to me that if the Republican leaders of the State are chiefly interested in strengthening themselves here in Missouri, they will send a solid delegation to the Kansas City convention for Lowden, with the understanding that it will switch to Dawes, should this become necessary.

"There is no man living whom the farmers of this country hate as cordially and bitterly as they do Herbert Hoover, and in case he is nominated, the big corn belt states are certain to bury him under an avalanche of votes that the Republican leaders will have cause to remember for many a day.

"Perhaps there are those who will resent this advice coming from one who is usually classed as a Democrat, but I have no apologies to offer on this score. The simple truth is that I am a thousand times more interested in saving agriculture from the collapse that is now impending, than I am in the flesh pots of my political party—this is why I want to see Lowden or Dawes nominated and elected President of the United States, and in case this comes to pass, I feel sure that not merely agriculture, but the other vital interests of the nation will be in safe hands."

The Girls Auxiliary of the First Baptist Church will meet at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the home of the sponsors, P. J. Jantze.

CHAPTER XLVII

Those gray slits of eyes were Tom Benton's; there was no mistaking them. Tony Harrison had seen them, nine years before, glaring at the lifeless form of a man in a little saloon in Caldwell, and he had not forgotten them. . . .

And now he could hear Benton's voice come faintly through the glass, high-pitched, threatening, as he glared at Morrison in the chair; "All right; I'll give you one more chance to open it. I'll counte ten. Then—" and he deliberately broke off and waved the revolver in his hand in a significant gesture.

Outside, Tony Harrison slowly raised his own gun and leveled it. But Benton presented a bad target. There was, to begin with, the barred window between them. And Benton was fairly well shielded from an outside foe, partly by his own companion, partly by Morrison.

The young man thought quickly. There was small likelihood true, of a bullet's being deflected by the window pane—still, there remained the possibility. And if he should hit Benton, Morrison might be killed as a result, either by the other man or by Benton's own convulsive finger pressure.

If Morrison held out in his dogged determination not to open the safe, he would have to fire. If not, he could wait outside for the pair to gather their loot and surprise them as they left.

He heard Benton counting and l his breath, his finger tightening on the trigger of the slender weapon in his hand: "Four . . . five . . . six . . ." Benton's eyes narrowed to mere cracks. They gleamed viciously. Suddenly Morrison nodded and gave up.

A smile contorted the scar-twisted face of the man in front of him. "Come to your senses, did you? Now be quick about it. We're done fooling with you."

From his post at the window Harrison could see the bank cashier, his face bloodless, kneel beside the safe and twirl the knob. The heavy door swung open and Benton shoved him roughly out of the way and motioned for the man with the bag to get busy.

Ignoring the silver, the man swept neat little stacks of currency into the bag while Benton kept his six-gun trained on Morrison. The first few pattering drops of rain, heralds of the coming downpour, fell against the face of the watcher outside and a minute later the man beside the safe straightened up with a nod. The job was done."

"I ought to plug you anyway," Benton said savagely to Morrison "for being so damn stubborn. God—" but his companion with a sudden exclamation touched his arm and gestured nervously toward the door. "Let him be, Tom; we better hurry."

Benton reluctantly backed away. He growled something at the cashier that Harrison could not hear and swung suddenly around.

The man outside breathed a sigh of relief and glided back into the shadows besides the horses. The man he had struck over the head still lay like a felled tree, but he bent swiftly downward and reassured himself with another brief glance at his face. Then he pulled his hat down over his eyes, he took a position close to the horses and waited.

The door of the bank swung open and two figures ran toward him in the darkness. "All right," came Benton's voice. "Let's be away."

Harrison's eyes narrowed, straining in the dark. His jaw tightened. A moment now and—

Before him loomed two bulky shapes. "I've still got a good mind to kill that damn cashier," Benton growled. "Everything all right, Pete?"

"What the hell"; Benton rapped out. "Ain't that you, Pete? What—"

"No, this isn't Pete." Harrison said coolly. "This is a reception committee here to give you a welcome, Benton, you're wanted for murder"—he moved instinctively ton one side—"and a few other things. I'm giving you a chance to surrender, although I'd like nothing better—"

He was interrupted by an oath from Benton. A black shadow ducked suddenly and a pistol barked. A horse screamed in agony and the others bolted in panic.

"You asked for it, Benton," Tony said deliberately and fired. He threw himself to the ground, prone, and fired again and heard Benton groan.

"Now then," said Harrison, addressing himself to Benton's companion, "if you want the same dose—"

Light sprang suddenly from the side window of the bank, and in the faint illumination he saw Benton's companion standing with arms uplifted in a downpour of rain.

"Now, I'd call that real sensible," Tony drawled. He raised his voice and called. "Morrison!"

There was an answering cry from the bank and Morrison came running.

"Just relieve that gent of his hardware," Tony ordered. "There's something here I want to look at."

He approached the falen Benton warily, feeling first for the man's bands. Then he felt a sudden nausea and spoke once more to the surprised bank cashier. "You'd better look at him, Morrison: I've changed by mind."

Two hours later he sat in the marshal's office, surrounded by an excited group of Guthrie citizens. In a corner of the room two men in manacles gazed about them with sullen eyes, and in the next room something lay on the floor covered with a blanket.

"He saved the bank more than $12,000," Morrison was saying. "It was the neatest thing you ever saw. Took care of three of them single-handed. Harrison," he smiled, "any time you need a loan at the bank I'll see that you get it."

"Thanks," said Tony. "And you gentlemen ought to know," he said, sweeping the room with his gaze, "just what kind of a watch-dog you've got sitting on your money in the bank. By golly, I thought for a while he never would open that safe."

"Harrison won't be needin' any loans for some time," observed the marshal. "There's a reward of $2500 for Benton's capture, dead or alive. Personally, I prefer him the way he is—dead."

"I'm not taking any reward," Benton's slayer announced. "I'm turning it over to the city of Guthrie for a police fund. As a business man," he added, smiling, "I'm looking for all the protection the law can give us . . . Benton killed my father and I don't want anything for squaring the account."

The mashal took a chew of tobacco and grinned. "I'm not goin' to stand in your way, Harrison." He let go with scientific accuracy at the cuspidor. "What I want to know is how you got suspicious of this gent Forbes. Was I blind or something?"

"I don't know how he got his scar," Tony replied, "but that and his slick hair and his goatee and cute little mustache threw me off the track for a while. I had the notion all along that I knew him. It was his eyes, Marshal. He couldn't disguise them. It came to me all of a sudden while I was playing poker."

Harrison's eyes clouded for a brief moment. He got up and stretched, saying, "Well, Marshal, take good care of these boys," and jerked a thumb toward the men in manacles. "I'm going to get some sleep," he announced.

"And you're entitled to it," Fred Perkins told him. "I'll walk along with you."

They walked together for some time without speech. "Benton," Tony Harrison said presently, "was in Chicago for a while. That much of his story was true. One of his friends told me that he didn't come back to the territory till the opening. I forgot to ask him how Benton got the scar, but it doesn't make any difference; it's all over now. . . Did I tell you that I got six contracts today for timber? We're going to be busier than all getout this fall, but meantime I'm planning on a little vacation."

He went to bed that night with the conviction that the time had come for him to ride up to the Bar K and see Joe Craig.

The next morning there was a letter for him at the postoffice and he smiled at the coincidence, for Pawnee Bill had written: "If you haven't been up to the Bar K yet you ought to be ashamed of yourself. I've felt real mean about keeping your whereabouts a secret from Joe Craig and I'm not going to keep it up. I'm intending to look him up myself to see if he regards me as a friend or enemy. My wife and mother were so glad to see me after hearing I'd been killed in the rush that they've kept me tied to their apron strings on the farm. I've already made arrangements for my own show again next year and this time I'll make money. The time will come when Buffalo Bill, as big a name as he's got in the show business, will be glad to have me as an equal partner. I can see a tour of Europe and a lot of money, and then maybe you'll be sorry you stuck to the hardware business in Guthrie."

Tony Harrison smiled. "Maybe" he said and directed his steps toward the livery stable. "Cherokee," he said to the big black stallion that lifted his head in greeting "we're going to ramble."

Tony rides back to the Bar K and finds the love he thought he had lost. In the final chapter.

Judge Graves has been a member of the Missouri Supreme Court for nearly 23 years. In 1905, when he was Circuit Judge in the Twenty-ninth Judicial Circuit, he was appointed by Gov. He was re-elected in 1908 and 1918 for 10-year terms. His present term expires Dec. 1, 1928.

APPEAL RATE CASE TO THE FEDERAL COURT

Attorneys for Insurance Companies Granted Temporary Injunction Against Reduction.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 15.—An order to put into effect a 10 per cent rate reduction on fire, hail, lightning and windstorm insurance in Missouri has been issued to agents of the General Insurance Company of America, they informed the department today.

The company is the only one thus far to comply with an order of the state insurance commissioner that was recently upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 15.—Attorneys representing Missouri insurance companies filed 148 separate injunction suits in federal court here late yesterday to restrain Attorney General N. T. Gentry from executing a rate reduction order of the state insurance commissioner.

The order calls for a reduction of 10 per cent in rates on fire, lightning, hail and windstorm insurance in Missouri. The order was made October 9, 1922 and has been the subject of litigation since that time.

The federal suits were filed here after federal Judge Otis in St. Joseph yesterday granted temporary restraining orders, prohibiting state officials from taking further action in the case. The orders were made returnable in Kansas City February 21 and will be heard by one federal circuit and two district judges.

Federal action was instituted in the case on the ground that constitutional rights of the insurance companies would be violated should the order be enforced.

Urge Flood Control by Water Diversion

Army Engineer Predicts "Super-Flood" If Precautions Are Not Taken Soon.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Mississippi flood control by water diversion rather than by levees or reservoirs was recommended today by Brig. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, in an address to the Midwest power conference here. Jadwin was unable to appear at the conference, and the address was read by Col. E. A. Schultz.

Jadwin renewed his prediction of a "super-flood" in the Mississippi Valley if precautions were not taken.

The flood control plan proposed by Jadwin would cost $185,400,000 for work exclusively for flood control, and $111,000,000 additional for flood control and navigation work.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—All grains were unsettled today and price ranges were wide. Corn furnished the lively spot in the session, many wheat and oats traders going over into the corn pit to find action. Wheat and oats were dull, although there was considerable liquidation in the oats pit.

After a session of erratic movements corn suddenly bulged again during the last hour and the close caught prices at the top of the rally, ¾ to 1c above yesterday's close. Wheat didn't have time to catch the strengthened tone and the finish was ⅜ to ½c lower. Oats closed unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Provisions weakened and closed slightly lower.

Corn was much more erratic than usual, the July selling at a new high figure and then declining suddenly to the previous closing level. The opening was lower despite expectations of small receipts. When receipts were found to be only 96 cars there was a sudden rally that sent everything sharply higher. Heavy realizing sales soon killed the bulge, however, and from mid-session onward the session was irregular with many dips and rallies. On the whole the tone seemed to be downward during the morning.

Iowa dispatches said roads in many sections there were impassable which accounts for the extremely light receipts. Weather over the belt was still cloudy but rains had mostly ceased.

Wheat and oats trailed along in the wake of corn during most of the session. Lower foreign cables and forecasts for snow over winter wheat areas took all the activity and independent strength out of wheat. Receipts were 39 cars.

In oats there was a wave of realizing sales as tired holders tried to get their money back. Receipts were 37 cars.

The wheat and corn cash markets were steady and unchanged but cash oats declined ¼ cent with oats futures.

Provisions worked lower.

WIN TILT IN LAST PERIOD

SPOOFHOUNDS DEFEAT ROSENDALE 24 TO 18.

GAME ALWAYS CLOSE

Wilson's Basket Shooting Enables Maryville to Come From Behind To Win.

The Maryville High School Spoofhounds came through in the final minutes of an exciting game last night here with Rosendale, to win by a 24 to 18 count, after trailing for three quarters.

The first half was featured by close guarding. At the end of the first quarter, the visitors were leading 2 to 1 and at the end of the half, 7 to 6. Both these leads were scored with a field counter as the gong sounded.

Coach Wallace Croy's men came back for the second half with considerable more fight and the Rosendale men failed to match it during the final minutes of play.

Wilson, who was substituted for Sellers in the first quarter, was the scoring power that won for Maryville. Immediately after the third quarter began, with Maryville trailing 12 to 18, he found the hoop with a spectacular shot with a toss over his head. This was soon augmented with a two-pointer. With the score standing 18 to 16 in favor of Rosendale, the visitors took time out.

Wilson tied the score as soon as he got the ball. Hahn then slipped down the floor from his guard position and set Maryville ahead by a two-point margin. Rosendale never again gained the lead. In the final minutes Maryville took the game in hand and scored with ease to cop the contest and retain a clean slate by a six point margin.

Wilson was high-point man for Maryville totaling ten points. Russell was second with six.

The game was probably one of the best played on the Maryville floor this year, and was contested more closely than the score indicates. Rosendale was in the lead during the greater part of three quarters and Maryville was trailing by six points late the game. This gave the Spoofhounds their scare this year. The game was won by Wilson's unbeatable shooting in the final quarter.

Maryville meets Chillicothe next and then will play Burlington Junction, also an undefeated team this season, having won fifteen straight games.

AGAIN DEFEAT TARK CAGERS

19 POINTS BY BURKS

The Maryville Teachers swamped the Tarkio College cagers at Tarkio College last night for the second time this season. The Bearcats returned home last night victors 48 to 27. They will now prepare for a two-game series here Friday and Saturday nights with the Kirksville Teachers, leaders of the M. I. A. A. conference.

It was Paul Burks last night who led his teammates to victory, hooking in five field baskets and nine free throws for high-point man of the game. Orville Hedges was forced out of the game on personal fouls. Strange as it may seem this is the second time this year that the conference leading scorer has had to retire because of the limit on personal fouls.

Coach H. P. Lawrence used eight men in the non-conference game with Tarkio, using McKee, Iba, Swinford and Hedges as forwards, and Johnson, Ferguson and Harris at guards.

For Tarkio, Mumford, a guard, was the scoring power of the Tarks, scoring five field goals and a free throw. The Bearcats ran up the score 33 to 13 at the end of the half.

CONCEPTION WINNER OVER BURLINGTON

The list of unbroken victories of the Burlington Junction High School basketball team was disrupted last night by the quintet of Conception College of Conception on the latter's floor in a rough and tumble affair which ended 31 to 27.

In a previous game at Burlington Junction there was some dispute as to the winner, although the official score keeper's book gave Burlington a one-point margin. The defeat was the first last night in sixteen starts for the Junction cagers.

The score was always close, being tied 6-all, 10-all, 12-all, 14-all, 25-all and 27-all. A final spurt in the final quarter by the Collegians left the Burlington Boys trailing when the final whistle sounded.

Burlington started the scoring in the opening minute of play and scored six points before Conception could find the basket. The home team tied the score at all but trailed 8 to 10 at the end of the first quarter. The second quarter found Conception hitting the basket to leave Burlington with the small end of a 23 to 16 score at the end of the period. In the third quarter Conception was held scoreless as Burlington made six points.

The final period was a "battle royal" with Burlington tieing the score 25-all by three free throws. The Junction cagers made one field basket in the period of play to tie the score 27-all, but the basketshooting of Reising and Gales, Conception players, gave their team the necessary points to win, Reising getting three and Gales one field basket to boost the score to 31.

Oil Drilling Rig Is Moved by George Rose To Rock Port

After two unsuccessful attempts to discover a golden flow of oil in Nodaway County, George Rose and his son, Raymond Rose, oil well contractors, have "pulled stakes" and are moving their equipment to Atchison county.

Two holes were drilled by Mr. Rose with his outfit on the Joe Carden farm, about ten miles west of Maryville. The drillings were made during the last two years. One hole was drilled to a depth of about 1,800 feet and the latter one over 1,400 feet.

Mr. Rose was under contract with the Nodaway County Gas and Oil Company, which had land under lease in the vicinity of Quitman. On the second attempt to find oil, there was a showing in some sand. The hole was "swabbed" but the flow could not be brought back. It was last summer when this occurred and much interest was aroused. Persons from many miles came to visit the scene where the rig was located and reports even were heard that oil had been brought in.

Several meetings of the board of directors of the oil company were held after Mr. Rose had drilled to the 1,400 foot level and attempts were made to sell more stock in order to drill another well. However, when a meeting of the stockholders was called last fall, only a few responded. The proposition to drill another hole has dragged along all winter and no definite action ever was taken.

Mr. Rose said yesterday he had contracted with a company at Rock Port to drill for oil or gas on a high spot, located one and a half miles north and two and one-half miles west of Rock Port. The contract calls for 2,000 feet.

They started to move the equipment, but found difficulty in transporting the machinery due to the soft condition of the roads and the "rig" proper is now stalled on a farm west of Tarkio. Just as soon as the roads freeze or dry up Mr. Rose and his son will move the rest of the equipment and start operations as soon as possible.
